Change Challenges

- Following the Onboarding Programme, participants are individually required to submit examples of real problems (Change Challenges).
- Selected scenarios would be used during the four sessions of Structured Conversations on Change Challenges (SCCC).
- Participants will develop a prototype solution for one of their Change Challenges by the end of the SCCC.

Stage 3: Broadening & Co-Creation

Series of Structured Conversations on Change Challenges (SCCC)

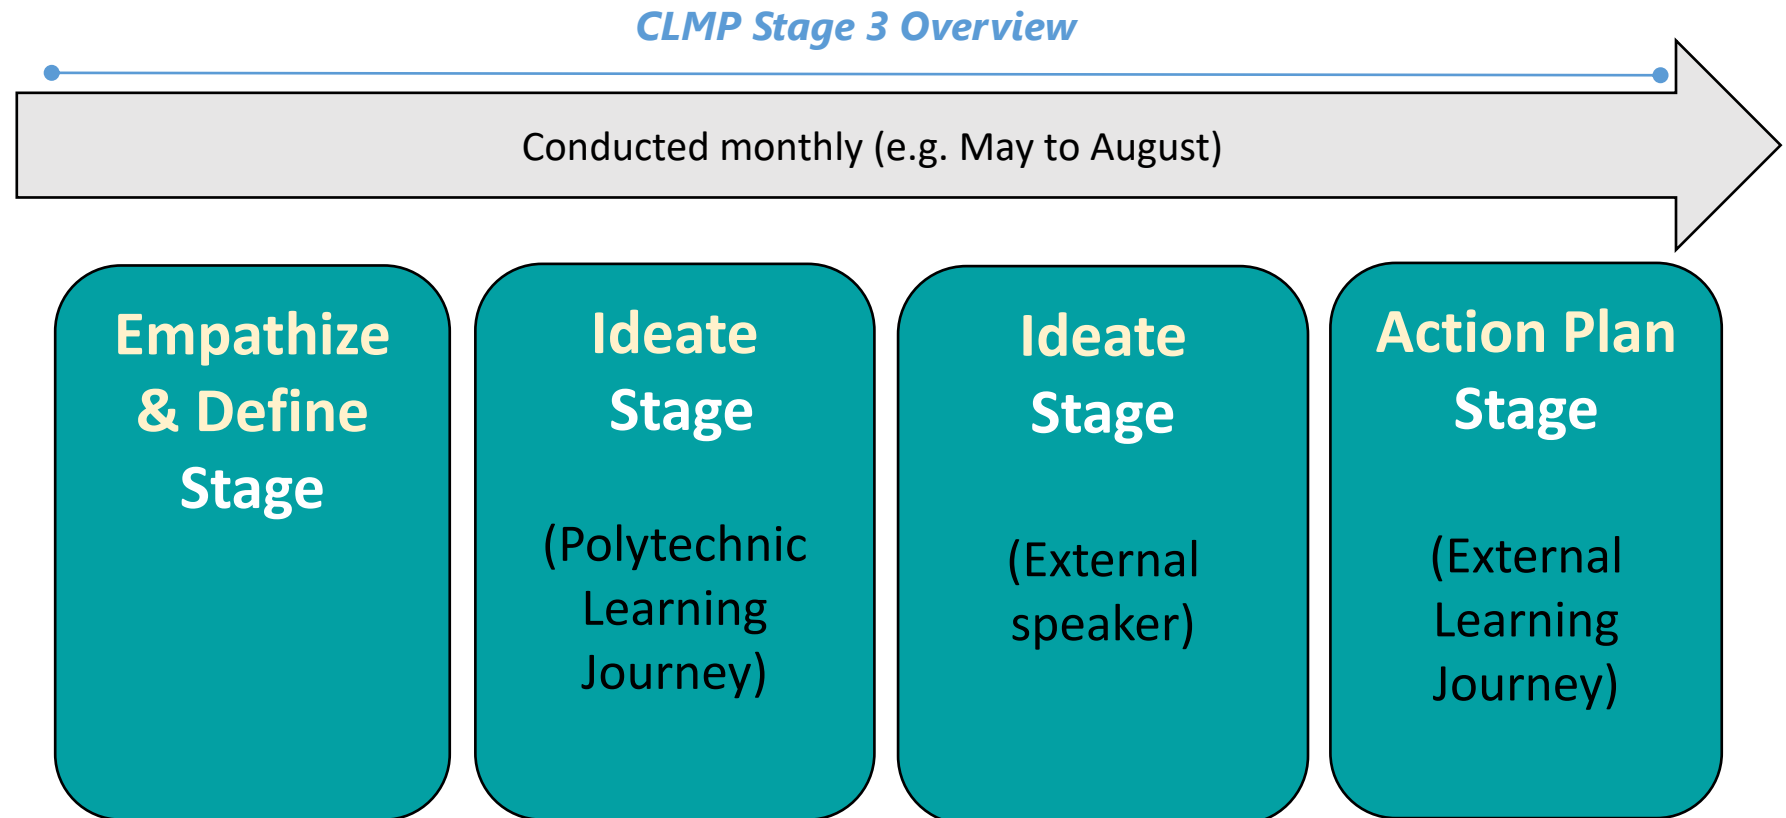

In this stage, participants will work on selected Change Challenges. This is done in small groups using elements of action learning and Design Thinking.

The aim is to provide authentic learning experiences for participants to co-create practical solutions.

Structured Conversations on Change Challenges

The participants will work on the Change Challenges over a series of four sessions. Additional triggers such as learning journeys are also included.

Stage 4: Consolidation & Inspiration

CLMP culminates with participants sharing their individual and group reflections in the Closing Session. There are also opportunities to learn from experienced course leaders through fireside chats.

The background of the slide is a composite image. It features several hands in the process of assembling a large puzzle. The puzzle pieces are in various colors, including red, yellow, and green. Overlaid on this image is a semi-transparent digital network or mesh, consisting of white lines connecting various points, suggesting a complex system or a digital framework. The overall tone is professional and collaborative.

Stage 5: Post- CLMP: Translation

After the joint-polytechnic programme concludes, participants are encouraged to apply the learning and solutions surfaced in CLMP back in their own polytechnics.
